Dear Bill:

SEP 9 1959

If I kept it this way, I may match Cappelini's reputation. Last week we moved the lab into the (gorgeous) new medical center. This week we're moving ourselves into a new (rental) small house pending the construction of our own.

I don't really understand your problem. I thought you wanted to definite change in your experience to broaden your outlook. If you want to study serum proteins, why not go with Smithies. And why can't you think of working on tissue culture or transplantation when you get back?

I myself don't see why you don't continue to plan on Pavia; if Luca's program there does collapse (which I doubt in any circumstance) you can probably make other arrangements more easily on the scene than you could ever hope to by mail. Cappelini never answers his mail, but he might be good form to work with. I would let events take their course & make any revisions as the actual unfolds.

as ever

John
